" What Is Moral?"

Dr. William Luther Pierce (2002)

Hello. A few days ago, I spoke with a friend who is a historian and a writer and who is interested in may of the things we discuss... on these weekly broadcasts.

He congratulated me on the growing influence of American dissidence voices. He said - and I quote - "Many more people than you realize listen to your broadcasts. They mail the texts to many other people... I meet many people at universities - and in other countries - as well as here in southern-California, who listen to your broadcasts and talk about them with each other."

My response was: "Then where are these people when I need them? Why don't I hear from more of them? Don't they realize that I can't continue doing these broadcasts all by myself for ever? The country is going down the drain... and all these people that you mentioned are doing is talking about my broadcasts and sitting on their hands! Why don't they help me? are they afraid that they'll be kicked out of the country club if they associate with me?"

My historian friend said that "it isn't fear" that keeps these people from contacting you... "it is their moral concerns." "In the past," he said, "your broadcasts were very harsh... very brutal... you talked about ethnic cleansing and approved of genocide and other things that these people find shocking!" - he said. "They won't support any cause unless they feel that it is a just cause! They think that you are willing to hurt too many people... they feel that you have no Christian constraint...they would rather commit suicide than become associated with an unjust cause..." - my friend told me.

I responded to him: "Don't these people believe that making a decent world for future generations of our people is a just cause!? Don't they believe that preventing the extinction of our race and our civilization is a just cause!?"

My friend really didn't have a good answer for that. But I gathered from his response that he believes my approach to our problems is too rough! too uncivilized! too un-Christian! for the people he talks with... and it makes them uncomfortable.

Then he congratulated me on becoming more acceptable in the last year than I was before. He said that I do talk now about the issues in a way that is easier for these people to relate to - and he thought that that had a lot to do with the fact that more people were listening to the programs now and discussing them with their friends...

Since this conversation with my friend a little more than a week ago... I've been thinking hard about what he said... I think I believe that I understand what he said - but I don't really agree with him. I don't really believe that it is very meaningful to say that Christian constraints make that academics and other perceptive people that he knows hold back from the necessarily unpleasant solutions to our race's problems.

"The strength of God will enable us, a small but faithful band, to overcome the multitude of the faithless."

Robert Guiscard¹

In the first place, most of these people aren't really Christians! - they were raised in a Christian environment... and Christian moral doctrine may still have a subconscious effect on them - but most of them are fairly intelligent and sophisticated people.

I believe that a reasonably high percentage of the pilots and other military officers that the current government - and a long line of governments before this have sent to blast Afghan villages to smithereens - or to bomb a European city like Belgrade - or to carpet-bomb German cities are Christians. - a higher percentage anyway than academics and other people that my friend talks with...

I also think that most of them have no qualms of conscience about what they do for a living... and these pilots - most of them - are not Neanderthal rednecks or bloody-minded sadists... - they are university graduates who are loving husbands and caring fathers...

"Jewish persecution only followed after Christian first were persecuted."

Father Charles Coughlin²

In the past Christians - American Christians - repeatedly have shown themselves quite capable of doing the most atrocious and bloody thing without hesitation.

The key, I believe, is social rather than religious or moral... the concern, I believe, is not about whether a cause is just or not - whatever that means - but, whether it is socially acceptable or not. That is "socially acceptable" in the peer group to which the person belongs, who claims to be concerned about the justness of my cause.

To tell the truth I don't believe that I have changed - or moderated - or softened my message during the past year. I always have tried to tell the truth - the whole truth and nothing but the truth - and I don't hold back from stating unpleasant facts or conclusions any more today than I did a year ago! I do try to avoid being unnecessarily offensive! I don't ordinarily use the word nigger in talking about racial matters, for example, because it makes so many people flinch - and I can be completely clear in what I want to say with out using that word.

But that is no more true today than it was five years ago. I've always tried to be unnecessarily offensive.

"We can have peace and security only so long as we band together to preserve that most priceless possession... our inheritance of European blood."

Charles Lindbergh³

I think that what has changed is not my message but the social environment. I believe that the social environment of most of the writers and professors and others who talk about my broadcasts - but won't talk with me!! - has shifted enough during the past couple of years, so that hard facts about race - and the Jews - are a little more acceptable than before.

I think that reality is quite not as de plus as it was a year or two ago.

You know I believe that I know these people about as well as anyone. I never was very fashion conscious myself - even before I began saying unfashionable things. I never worried much about whether I was wearing the latest style in cufflinks or neckties... and occasionally my socks wouldn't match... I probably would have been classified as a "nerd" by most fashion-conscious people of today... but I was a university professor! and I generally behaved in a socially-approved manner... I could even figure out which fork to use for the salad in most cases... and I didn't slurp my soup... or wipe my greasy fingers on my shirt or tablecloth...

If there was as difference between me and most of my peers... I think it was this: they took the conventions and taboos by which we live a little more seriously than I did. I think that I appreciate these things more now than I did then... now I understand that conventions and good manners and politeness and gentlemanly behaviour are important in a structured well-functioning society... but they are not the most important things! Honesty and facing reality without evasion are more important than politeness!

In the early-1960s, we all saw the society in which we live coming unraveled... we all could look ahead and see that very bad things were likely to be encountered just down the road if present trends continued... but it was not entirely acceptable to talk frankly about these things! - that is, it made many of my peers uncomfortable to talk frankly about where racial integration was taking America! - it made them even more uncomfortable to talk about the Jewish role in the dangerous policies being pursued by the government... I think that social conditioning was more important than Christianity or any other ethical considerations in imposing these constraints.

² Father Charles Coughlin (1891-1979), leader of the anti-Semitic Christian Front, was a controversial Canadian-American Roman Catholic priest based in the United States near Detroit at Royal Oak, Michigan's National Shrine of the Little Flower church, who became one of the most revered figures in the Depression era of American history.

³ Charles Lindbergh (1902-1974), an American aviator, made the first solo nonstop flight across the Atlantic Ocean on 20-21 May 1927 in his famous airplane, The Spirit of St. Louis.

We didn't feel personally threatened by Blacks! and the people who were personally threatened were the White manual workers at the bottom of the White social ladder, who reacted to the threat in ways that seemed very vulgar and uncouth to us - to us Blacks were still the underdogs... - and it seemed uncharitable to most of my peers for Whites to attack Blacks for wanting to better their positions... - the media-generated image of sweaty, unshaven Ku Klux Klansmen and other rednecks screaming insults at peacefully marching Black demonstrators was an unpleasant one that made us squirm. We certainly didn't want to put ourselves in the same boat with the Ku Klux Klan and other working - class Whites who were behaving in such an ungentlemanly manner.

I not only understood the feeling of my peers back in the 1960s... - I shared it!! Standing on a street corner and screaming insults at Blacks or shouting "White Power" while shaking one's fist or giving a Roman salute was not only rude and impolite... it was low-class.

I believe that is what made us most uncomfortable. Despite all of the pretensions to democracy and egalitarianism, America was and still is a very class-conscious society... - and that is not necessarily a bad thing! I think that in a well-ordered society it is reasonable to expect that the more-privileged and influential members of the society to have a stricter and more-refined mode of behaviour - and to hold themselves apart from those with less-strict codes... - and in the early-1960s, America still had a reasonably well-ordered society.

As I already mentioned, I was a little less reverent for things such as the polite behaviour expected of academics and professionals than most of my peers were... - and so, while many of them joined conservative think tanks and respectably conservative debating societies, I decided to say what I thought needed to be said - polite or not! The consequence of that decision was that the Jewish media immediately began doing a hatchet job on me. - portraying me as the sort of person that any member of polite society would be ashamed to associate with.

And so I spent the next 35 years as an outcast of sorts. It didn't bother me a great deal because the luxury of being able to tell the whole truth was a bit intoxicating.

Of course, I always tried to sway other professionals to tell the whole truth, too. - and a few of them did. - but not many were willing to take that step. That's beginning to change a little now. But not, I think, because I have become more polite or more moral... - I think that it is because the threat that we all could see back in the 1960s is no longer distant and theoretical... - it is looming darkly over all of us now... not just over the manual workers at the bottom of the White social ladder.

But I must say that even as more professionals are skewing up their courage and choosing truth instead of the country club... I am becoming more impatient with those who still hold back from a full commitment to the struggle for the survival of our race and our civilization.

I don't mean to seem condescending or offensive... - but I do think that it is time to quit making excuses that claim moral reservations. It is time to face the fact! that what is holding you back is not morality but fear - the fear of being labeled a "hater" or a neo-Nazi by the media. - the fear of being thought uncouth or low-class for finally admitting that those low-class Whites who were screaming obscenities at Black demonstrators in the 1960s... - and who were using the word nigger were right!!!

We didn't have to stand on street corners and do things in a low-class way that the Klan did... - but we were obliged to do something. We were obliged to whatever our positions and our abilities enabled us to do most effectively. And most of us dodged that obligation!!!

Lets talk about morality and just causes for a moment: I believe that the most common moral reservation I hear from the shirkers is that eh solutions to the problems that I talk about entail the punishment of the innocent with the guilty. Intelligent people tell me that they agree we should have a separation of the races - "but" they protest, not all Blacks will go voluntarily to some African country. And many of those who won't want to go are hard-working, law-abiding Blacks. And the same is true for the Mestizos who won't want to go back to Mexico or El Salvador. And what about the mixed-race children whose mothers were persuaded by Hollywood or MTV to let Blacks impregnate them? How can we possibly have a White society again without hurting millions of people!? And my answer is... - that we can't!!! And you must decide whether it is more moral to stand aside and permit Western Civilization and the race that built that civilization over the millennia to become extinct in the very near future - or to hurt many people - White as well as non-White - to ensure that both the race and the civilization survive.

When our ancestors arrived in America from Europe in the 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th centuries they encountered intense opposition from the Indians⁴ - which was natural enough - since the Indians were here first and didn't want us taking their land. But after the first few massacres of White settlers by Indians.⁵ Our ancestors rolled up their sleeves and ⁴ That was in America, where there was a genocidal war of extinction laid waste against the Native population. In Canada, however, the western interior was conquered not by violence but by love relationships tendered between the French Canadianne voyageur and fur trapper - and provides us with a much more beautiful history than in the United States. The Méacutetis are the underlying foundation stone of Western civilization in North America - and predate the American conquest to the time of Jacques Cartier's first voyage in 1534, being cemented later, in 1609, by Samuel de Champlain's tripartite mercantile trade treaty and political entente with the Wendat (called Huron) and other tribes - the barter of aboriginal women as interpreters and guides being of equal importance as the barter and war alliances.

2) Jamestown Massacre: On 22 March 1622, Powhatan (Pamunkey) killed 347 English men, women and children throughout the Virginia colony, almost one-third of the English population of the Jamestown colony, in an effort to push the English out of Virginia.

3) Wessagusset Affair: In 1623, several Massachusetts chiefs were lured to Wessagusset under peaceful pretenses and put to death. Other Indians present in the village were also killed.

4) Pamunkey Peace Talks: On 12 May 1623, the English poisoned the wine at a "peace conference" with Powhatan leaders, killing about 200; they physically attacked and killed another 50.

virtually exterminated the Indians. And I don't think they had to do a lot moral agonizing about it first! And it wasn't a gentlemanly war, either. We deliberately left small pots and infected blankets for the Indians to find... knowing that they Indians had no natural resistance to the disease. When we raided Indian villages we killed everybody - young and old, male and female., just like they did when they raided a White settlement.

To our ancestors the choice was...: get rid of the Indians or give up and go back to Europe. I doubt that moral qualms led many to go back to Europe - so as not to have to kill Indians. To virtually all of them, it was more moral to conquer the land for their descendants and to increase the territory and the power of their race, than to let the Indians keep the land.

Theirs was the morality of survival - the morality of life.

A couple of things have changed since those days...: First, we have a much stronger sense of identity - a much stronger sense of racial community, then than now; when it was a matter of Whites versus Indians everyone knew whose side he was on...! Second, we lived much closer to nature

5) Wethersfield Attack: On 23 April 1637, during the Pequot War, Wampanoag chief Sequin attacked the Puritan town Wethersfield, Connecticut with Pequot help. About 30 settlers were killed, including women and children.

6) Mystic Massacre: On 26 May 1637, In the Pequot War, English colonists commanded by John Mason, with Mohegan and Narragansett allies, launched a night attack on a large Pequot village on the Mystic River in present-day Connecticut, where they burned the inhabitants in their homes and killed all survivors, for total fatalities of about 600–700.

7) Staten Island Massacre: In July 1640, 80 Dutch soldiers under Cornelis van Tienhoven attacked a village of Raritan on Staten Island over stolen pigs. Van Tienhoven intended only to demand payment, but his men wanted to massacre the Indians and he eventually consented.

8) Pavonia Massacre: On 25 February 1643, the Mohawk attacked a band of Wappinger and Tappan, who fled to New Amsterdam seeking the protection of New Netherland governor, William Kieft. Kieft dispersed them to Pavonia and Corlears Hook. They were later attacked, 129 being killed. This prompted the beginning of Kieft's War, driven by mercenary John Underhill.

9) Hutchinson Massacre: In August 1643, as part of Kieft's War in New Netherland, near the Split Rock (now northeastern Bronx in New York City), local Lenape (or Siwanoy) killed Anne Hutchinson, six of her children, a son-in-law, and as many as seven others (servants). Susanna, one of Hutchinson's daughters, was taken captive and lived with the natives for several years.

10) Massapequa Massacre: In 1644, John Underhill's men killed more than 100 Indians near present-day Massapequa.

The list just goes on-and-on almost endlessly - Indians killing settlers and retaliation massacres by American colonists... but it isn't until the Lachine Massacre, on 5 August 1689, that race relations sour so violently in Québec as in the English Colonies, when 1500 Mohawk warriors attacked the small settlement of Lachine, New France and killed more than 90 of the village's 375 French residents, following widespread French attacks on Mohawk villages in present-day New York. Nonetheless, this was a singular incident and completely unlike what was happening in the United States at the time.

then..., we had not been softened by so much security and so many comforts - and reality was something we had to deal with every day in order to survive.

Actually, I've over-simplified this example of Whites versus Indians... by the 19th century, some East Coast White Liberals had decided that they were on the Indian's side! they were White's who had been safely established in the cities for a couple of generations - and softened thereby. And they didn't have to face Indians on the frontier.

They wrote books... gave lectures to groups of gentlemen... and preached Sunday sermons to the credulous that idealized the Indians as noble savages... ignored the horrible atrocities committed by the Indians against White settlers... and emphasized White depravations against the Indians.

Fortuneately, by the time their activities began to have much effect on public opinion and government policy... the Indians were pretty well finished! otherwise, the population of the United States today might look much like that of Mexico.

Today, the process is somewhat similar - but in reverse. Back in the 1960s, nearly all of us already were too soft, too comfortable, too secure... - and the propagandists for a new morality - the morality of surrender and death - already had poisoned our souls.

We had to treat the Blacks "fairly," we believed. We must not accuse the good Jews along with the bad Jews... along with the Zionists. We must not advocate anything that would punish the innocent with the guilty. We had to have a "just cause" before we could do anything.

But now! with the hour of decision at hand... with the grim reality of racial extinction before us... some of us are beginning to understand! that the morality of survival is a higher morality than the morality of fairness.

I hope that the books I have written - and the lectures and sermons I have been giving - as unpublished... as ungentelemanly as they are... have had some small part in bringing this understanding to some of our people.

It's time now for an end to the polite chatter at fashionable dinners and cocktail parties to give way to hard-headed talk and planning aimed at saving our people... and saving our civilization no matter what it takes... no matter how unfair we must be in claiming this planet for our descendents.

Perhaps, the polite and gentlemanly Americans holding back now may find some much needed courage in news of developments in polite circles overseas. In Britain, for example, the Jews and their hangers on in the government and the media have been complaining bitterly for the past month about a remark the French Ambassador Daniel Bernard⁶ made at a very polite dinner party in London (on 19 December 2001): Ambassador Bernard described Israel as quote "that shitty little country" - and asked quote "Why should we be in danger of Third World War because of these people?"

The Jews are bemoaning the fact that not only did Bernard have the courage to make that comment but that others at the dinner party agreed with him!

"Try and imagine how much brainwashing it would take to convince all the Asians living in Asia, that they need to go ahead and replace themselves (in Asia) with North African Muslims?

Now imagine that they they were so totally brainwashed that they really believed it would be racist not to??"

If you manage to do that...: Welcome to the world of the White anti-Whites."

I'll quote from a story in the December 23rd issue of the London newspaper The Independent: "Representatives of Britain's Jews fear that polite society is embracing anti-Semitism... and making it appear acceptable. It is being nurtured, they say, around the dinner tables of London's chattering classes, where Jew and Israel bashing has, according to some, become [unintelligible]."

Joe Rogerman, the president of the Board of Deputies of British Jews said: "Anti-Semitism is raising its head again. It has become acceptable for the first time in fifty years. People who have a respectable veneer can express these views in public... and now get support rather than condemnation. I think much of what is expressed is anti-Zionist in content... but within that is a very strong anti-Semitic element."

"Every time we do something, you tell me Americans will do this and will do that. I want to tell you something very clear. Don't worry about American pressure on Israel; we, the Jewish people, control America. And the American's know it."

Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon

And it's not just polite society in Britain and in France that is beginning to talk at least a bit more frankly about the world's Jewish problem - academics, journalists, government officials and intellectuals throughout the Muslim world from Iran to Indonesia, are showing increasing willingness to speak out not just about Israel - and not just about so-called Zionists... but about all Jews... about Jews as a race whose monomaniacal scheming imposes an enormous danger to the whole world.

There always has been an undercurrent... - in official circles it was denounced. The Jews in America would complain to the U.S. government whenever an anti-Israel cartoon appeared in an Egyptian newspaper! or the foreign minister of Syria made an anti-Jewish comment in public.

The U.S. government would obediently threaten the offending country with unpleasant consequences if the offensive behaviour continued. And the appropriate officials in that country would promise to crack down on it.

Anti-Racist is a Code Word for Anti-White

That situation has been changing during the past couple of years, however, and especially since September 11th. Now the governments throughout most of the Muslim world no longer are trying to suppress criticism of the Jews but are participating in the effort to inform their people of the Jewish menace.

The influential Saudi Arabian daily newspaper al-Watan published a long two-part article last month, on December 8th and 9th (2002), that I might have written myself...! it talked about the Jew's ambition to control the world from 1st Testament times to the present. It went into their scheming before the First World War... - to use the war to advance their interests... - and it went into Jewish media control in depth, pointing out that the Jews everywhere worked to undermine the racial and national solidarity of their host countries.

al-Watan like all of the newspapers in Saudi Arabia is financed by the government. And at least one major Islamic newspaper in the United States, Muslims, published in New York had been reprinting the text of several of these American dissident voices broadcasts.

The chattering classes in America may be a bit behind those in France and Britain and Saudi Arabia... but I do have hopes that they will begin catching up soon.

Thanks for being with me again today.

The Case for the Khazarian Jews

An abstract from a letter Benjamin Freedman wrote to his friend Dr. David Goldstein on 10 October 1954. In the letter, Mr. Freedman who was a former Zionist details the origins of the Jewish lineage which goes back not to the Middle East but back to Europe and the Khazarian Empire. Which means today's Jews are not descendants of anyone or anything from Biblical Lore. This includes Abraham, the Hebrews, the Israelites, the Lost Tribes and so on. By connecting the Jewish lineage back to Europe means the Jews cannot legitimately point to a single ancient ancestor who ever set foot on the soil of Palestine in the era of Bible history.

Mr. Freedman's research, which was extensive, means the Israeli claim to Palestine and other areas of the Middle East is not founded in any historical fact or evidence. His research says the Jewish claim to Palestine is unfounded since they are not Israelites but European Khazars.

Benjamin Freedman's research has been validated by other researchers and also by a recent DNA study released in 2012 by Dr. Eran Elhaik, an Israeli born, Jewish researcher from John Hopkins Medical University. Elhaik's scientific DNA study also points the Jewish lineage back into Europe and not Palestine or any other area within the Middle East.

You will probably also be astonished as the 150 million Christians years ago, when I electrified the nation with the first publication by me of the facts disclosed by my many years of research into the origin and history of the so-called or self-styled Jews in Eastern Europe.

My many years of intensive research established beyond the question of any doubt, contrary to generally-accepted beliefs held by Christians that the so-called or self-styled Jews in Eastern Europe at any time in their history in eastern Europe were never the legendary Lost Ten Tribes of Bible lore. That historic fact is incontrovertible. Relentless research established as equally true that the so-called or self-styled Jews in Eastern Europe at no time in their history could be correctly regarded as

as the direct lineal descendants of the legendary Lost Ten Tribes of Bible lore.

The so-called or self-styled Jews in Eastern Europe in modern history cannot legitimately point to a single ancient ancestor who ever set even a foot on the soil of Palestine in the era of Bible history.

Research also revealed that these so-called or self-styled Jews in Eastern Europe were never Semites! are not Semites now! nor can they ever be regarded as Semites at any future time by any stretch of the imagination.

Exhaustive research also irrevocably rejects as a fantastic fabrication the generally accepted belief by Christians that the so-called and self-styled Jews of Eastern Europe are the legendary chosen peoples so very vocally publicized by the Christian clergy from their pulpits.

Maybe you can explain to me, my dear Dr. Goldstein, the reason why and just how the origin and history of the Khazars in Khazar kingdom was so well concealed from the world for so many centuries?

What secret mysterious power has been able for countless generations to keep the origin and history of the Khazars in Khazar kingdom out of history textbooks and out of classroom courses in history throughout the world?

The origin and history of the Khazars in Khazar kingdom are certainly incontestable historical facts. These incontestable historic facts also establish beyond any question of doubt the origin and history of the so-called and self-styled Jews in eastern Europe.

The origin and history of the Khazars in Khazar kingdom and their relationship to the origin and early history of the so-called and self-styled Jews in eastern Europe was one of histories best kept secrets until wide publicity was given in recent years to my research on this subject.

Do you not think, my dear Dr. Goldstein, that it is time this whole subject was dragged out of its hiding place?

In the year 1948, in the Pentagon in Washington (D.C.), I addressed a large assembly of the highest ranking officers of the United States army - principally in the G-2 branch of the military intelligence on the highly explosive geo-political situation in eastern Europe and the Middle East.

Then as now, that area of the world was a potential threat to the peace of the world and to the security of this nation that I explained to them fully the origin of the Khazars in Khazar kingdom. I felt then as I feel now that without a clear and comprehensive knowledge of that subject that it is not possible to understand or evaluate properly what has been taking place in the world since 1917 - the year of the Bolshevik Revolution in Russia - it is the key to that problem.

Upon the conclusion of my talk a very alert lieutenant-colonel present at the meeting informed me that he was the head of the history department of one of the largest and highest scholastic-rated intuitions of higher education in the United States...! He had taught history there for sixteen years... he had recently been called back to Washington for further military service. To my astonishment he informed me that he had never in all his career as a history teacher or otherwise heard the word Khazar before he heard me mention it there.

That must give you some idea, my dear Dr. Goldstein, of how successful that mysterious secret power was with their plot to block out the origin and history of the Khazars in Khazar kingdom in order to conceal from the world, in particular Christians the true origin and history of the so-called and self-styled Jews in eastern Europe.

The Russian conquest in the 10th-to-13th centuries of the little known Khazars apparently ended the existence for all time of the little known to history 800,000 square mile sovereign kingdom of the so-called and self-styled Jews in eastern Europe, known then as the Khazar kingdom.

Historians and theologians now agree that this political development was the reason for that important change in the wordings of the [unintelligible] by [] Samuel in the 11th century and for the policy adopted by the so-called and self-styled Jews that the law of revocation in advance was not made public.

Will you be patient with me as I review here as briefly as I can the history of that political emergence and disappearance of a nation from the pages of history.

Prior to the 10th century, the Khazar kingdom had already been reduced by Russian conquests to an area of about 800,000 square miles. As you can see on the map [from the Jewish Encyclopedia] the territory of the Khazar kingdom in the 10th century was still by far the largest of any nation in Europe.

The population of the Khazar kingdom was made up for the most part of Khazars with addition of remnants of the populations of the 25 peaceful agricultural nations which had inhabited this approximately 1 million square miles before their conquest by the invading Khazars.

In the first century B.C., the Khazars had invaded eastern Europe from their homeland in Asia. The Khazars invaded eastern Europe by the land route between the north end of the Caspian Sea and the south end of the Ural Mountains.

The Khazars were not Semites! they were an Asiatic Mongoloid nation. They are classified by modern anthropologists as Turko-Finns racially.

From time immemorial the homeland of the Khazars was in the heart of Asia. They were a very warlike nation. The Khazars were driven out of Asia finally by the nations in Asia with whom they were continually at war.

The Khazars invaded eastern Europe to escape further defeats in Asia. The very warlike Khazars did not find it difficult to subdue and conquer the 25 peaceful agricultural nations, occupying approximately 1 million square miles in eastern Europe.

In a comparatively short period the Khazars established the largest and most powerful kingdom in Europe... and probably the wealthiest, also.

The Khazars were a pagan nation when they invaded eastern Europe. Their religious worship was a mixture of phallic worship and other forms of idolatrous worship practiced in Asia by pagan nations. This form of worship continued until the 7th century. The vile forms of sexual excesses indulged in by the Khazars as their form of religious worship produced a degree of moral degeneracy the Khazar king could not endure.

In the 7th century, King Bulan, ruler at that time of the Khazar kingdom, decided to abolish the practice of phallic worship and other forms of idolatrous worship and make one of the three monotheistic religions - about which he knew very little - the new state religion.

After a historic session with representatives of the three monotheistic religions, King Bulan decided against Christian and Islam and selected as the future state religion the religious worship then known as Talmudism... and now known and practiced as Judaism.

This is even well-documented in history. King Bulan and his 4000 feudal nobles were promptly converted by rabbis imported from Babylonia for that event.

Phallic worship and other forms of idolatry were thereafter forbidden.

The Khazar kings invited large numbers of rabbis to come and open synagogues and schools to instruct the population in the new form of religious worship. It was now the state religion. The converted Khazars were the first population of so-called or self-styled Jews in eastern Europe.

So-called or self-styled Jews in eastern Europe after the conversion of the Khazars - the descendants of the Khazars converted to Talmudism (or as it is now known Judaism) by the 7th century mass conversion of the Khazar population.

After the conversion of King Bulan, none but a so-called or self-styled Jew could occupy the Khazar throne. The Khazar kingdom became a virtual theocracy. The religious leaders were the civil administrators, also.

The religious leaders imposed the teaching of the Talmud upon the population as their guide to living. The ideologies of the Talmud became the axis of political, cultural, economic and social attitudes in activities throughout the Khazar kingdom.

The Talmud provided civil and religious law.

It might be very interesting for you, my dear Dr. Goldstein, if you have the patience to allow me to quote for you here from Volume Four, pages 1-to-5, of the Jewish Encyclopedia: Khazar is pronounced like the first syllable of "cos-tume" with the word "zar" added on to it. It is correctly pronounced "cos-zar"

The Jewish Encyclopedia has five pages on the Khazars but I will skip through them.

Kha'-zars - a people of Turkish origin whose life and history are interwoven with the very beginnings of the history of the Jews of Russia. Driven on by the nomadic tribes of the steppes and by their own desire for plunder and revenge.

In the second half of the 6th century, the Khazars moved westward. The kingdom of the Khazars was firmly established in most of south Russia long before the foundation of the Russian monarchy by the Varangian. At this time the kingdom of the Khazars stood at the height of its power and was constantly at war.

At the end of the 8th century, the king of the Khazars and his grandees, together with a large number of his heathen people embraced the Jewish religion. The Jewish population in the entire domain of the Khazars in the period between the 7th and the 10th centuries must have been considerable.

About the 9th century, it appears as if all the Khazars were Jews - and that they had been converted to Judaism only a short time before.

It was one of the successors of Bulan named Obadiah, who regenerated the kingdom in strength and the Jewish religion. He invited Jewish scholars to settle in his dominions - and founded synagogues and schools. The people were instructed in the Bible, Mishnah and the Talmud - and in the divine service of the [Hassanein].

In their writings the Khazars used the Hebrew letters - the Khazar language is predominated...

Obadiah was succeeded by his son Isaac, Isaac by his son Moses (or Manasseh II), the later by his son Nicea, and Nicea by his son Aaron II. King Joseph himself was the son of Aaron... and ascended the throne in accordance with the law of the Khazars relating to succession. The king had twenty-five wives... all of royal blood... and sixty concubines... all famous beauties. Each one slept in a separate tent and was watched by a eunuch. This seems to have been the beginning of the downfall of the Khazar kingdom.

The Russian Varangians established themselves at Kiev - until the final conquest of the Khazars by the Russians. After a hard fight the Russians conquered the Khazars. Four years later the Russians conquered all the Khazarian territory east of the (sea of) Azov.

Many members of the Khazarean royal family emigrated to Spain, some went to Hungary, but the great mass of the people remained in their native country.

The greatest historian on the origin and history of the so-called and self-styled Jews in eastern Europe was Prof. H. Gr...ts, himself a so-called or self-styled Jew. Prof. H. Gr...ts points out in his famous History of the Jews that when so-called or self-styled Jews in other countries heard a rumour about so-called or self-styled Jews in the Khazar kingdom they believed these converted Khazars to be the Lost Ten Tribes.

These rumours were no doubt responsible for the legend which grew up that Palestine was the homeland of the converted Khazars.

On page 141 in his History of the Jews, Prof. H. Gr...ts states: The Khazars professed a coarse religion which was combined with sensuality and lewdness... - after Obadiah came a long series of Jewish chagins, or kings, for according to a fundamental law of the state only Jewish rulers were permitted to ascend the throne.

For some time the Jews of other countries had no knowledge of the conversion of this powerful kingdom to Judaism... - and when at last a vague rumour to this fact reached them, they were of the opinion that Khazaria was peopled by a remnant of the former Ten Tribes.

When the Khazars in the first century B.C. invaded eastern Europe, their mother-tongue was an Asiatic language referred to in the Jewish Encyclopedia as the Khazar languages. They were primitive Asiatic dialects without any alphabet or any written form.

When King Bulan was converted in the 7th century, he decreed that the Hebrew characters he saw in the Talmud and other Hebrew documents was thereupon to become the alphabet for the Khazar language. The Hebrew characters were adopted to the phonetics of the spoken Khazar language.

The Khazars adopted the characters of the so-called Hebrew language in order to provide the means for providing a written record of their speech.

The adoption of the Hebrew characters had no racial, political or religious implication.

The western European uncivilized nations which had no alphabet for their spoken language adopted the alphabet of the Latin language under comparable circumstances.

With the invasion of western Europe by the Romans, the civilization and the culture of the Romans was introduced to these uncivilized areas. Thus the Latin alphabet was adopted for the language of the French, Spanish, English, Swedish and many other western European languages. These languages were completely foreign to each other yet they all used the same alphabet.

The Romans brought their alphabet with their culture to these uncivilized nations exactly like the rabbis brought the Hebrew alphabet from Babylonia to the Khazars when they introduced writing to them in the form of the Talmud's alphabet.

Since the conquest of the Khazars by the Russians - and the disappearance of the Khazar kingdom - the language of the Khazars is known as Yiddish.

For about six centuries the so-called and self-styled Jews in eastern Europe have referred to themselves while still resident in their native eastern European native country as Yiddish by nationality. They identified themselves as Yiddish rather than as Russian, Polish, Galician, Lithuanian, Rumanian, Hungarian or by the nation of which they were citizens.

They also referred to the common language they all spoke as Yiddish, also. There are today in New York city, as you know, my dear Dr. Goldstein, many Yiddish newspapers, Yiddish theatres, and many other cultural organizations so-called or self-styled Jews from eastern Europe which are identified publicly by the word "Yiddish" in their title.

Before it became known as the Yiddish language, the mother-tongue of the Khazars added many words to its limited ancient vocabulary as necessity required. These words were acquired from the languages of its neighbouring nations with whom they had political, social or economic relations. Languages of all nations add to their vocabularies in the same way.

The Khazars adapted words to their requirements from the German, the Slavonic and the Baltic languages. The Khazars adopted a great number of words from the German language. The Germans had a much more advanced civilization than their Khazar neighbours - and the Khazars sent their children to the German universities.

The Yiddish language is not a German dialect! Many people are led to believe so because Yiddish has borrowed so many words from the German language. If Yiddish is a German dialect acquired from the Germans then what language did the Khazars speak for 1000 years when they existed in eastern Europe before they acquired culture from the Germans? The Khazars must have spoken some language when they invaded eastern Europe! What was that language? When did they discard it? How did the entire Khazar population discard one language and adopt another all of a sudden? The idea is too absurd to discuss.

Yiddish is the modern name for the ancient mother-tongue of the Khazars with added German, Slavonic and Baltic adopted and adapted numerous words. Yiddish must not be confused with Hebrew because they both use the same characters as their alphabets. There is not one word of Yiddish in ancient Hebrew nor is their one word of ancient Hebrew in Yiddish.

As I stated before... they are as totally different as Swedish and Spanish which both likewise use the same Latin characters for their alphabets.

The Yiddish language is the cultural common denominator for all the so-called or self-styled Jews in eastern Europe. To these so-called and self-styled Jews in eastern Europe the Yiddish language serves them like the English language serves the populations of the 48 states of the United States. The cultural common denominator of the 48 states is the English language - or wherever they may emigrate and resettle. The English language is the tie which binds them to each other. It is the same with the Yiddish language and so-called or self-styled Jews throughout the world.

Yiddish serves another very useful purpose for so-called or self-styled Jews throughout the world... - they possess in Yiddish what no other national, racial or religious group can claim! Approximately 90% of the world's so-called or self-styled Jews living in 42 counties of the world today are either immigrants from eastern Europe or their parents emigrated from eastern Europe. Yiddish is a language that is common to all of them as a first or second language according to where they were born. It is an international language according to them.

Regardless of what country in the world they may settle they will always find co-religionists who also speak Yiddish. Yiddish enjoys other international advantages to obvious to describe here. Yiddish is the modern language of a nation which has lost its existence as a nation.

Yiddish never had a religious implication, although using Hebrew characters for its alphabet. It just not be confused with words like Jewish... - but it is very much used in that way.

Directly north of the Khazar kingdom at the height of its power a small Slavic state was organized in 820 A.D. on the south shore of the Gulf of Finland where it flows into the Baltic Sea. This small state was organized by a small group of Varangians from the Scandinavian peninsula on the opposite shore of the Baltic Sea. The native population of this newly-formed state consisted of nomads Slavs who had made their home in the area from earliest recorded history.

This infant nation was even smaller than our state of Delaware. This newly-formed state, however, was the embryo which developed into the great Russian Empire. In less than 1000 years since 820 A.D. this synthetic nation expanded its borders by ceaseless conquest until it now includes more than 9,500,000 square miles in Europe and Asia - or more than three times the area of continental United States... - and they have not stopped.

During the 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th centuries the rapidly expanding Russian nation gradually swallowed up the Khazar kingdom - its' neighbour directly to the south. The conquest of the Khazar kingdom by the Russians supplies history with the explanation for the presence - after the 13th century - for the large number of the so-called or self-styled Jews in Russia.

The large number of so-called or self-styled Jews in Russia and in eastern Europe after the destruction of the Khazar kingdom where they were no longer known as Khazars but as the Yiddish populations of these many countries. They so refer to themselves today.

In the many wars with their neighbours in Europe after the 13th century Russia was required to cede to her victors large areas which were originally part of the Khazar kingdom - in this manner Poland, Lithuania, Galicia, Hungary, Rumania, and Austria acquired from Russia territory originally a part of the Khazar kingdom. Together with this territory these nations acquired a segment of the population of so-called or self-styled Jews descended from the Khazars who once occupied the territory. These frequent boundary changes by the nations in eastern Europe explains the presence today of so-called or self-styled Jews in all these countries who all trace their ancestry back to the converted Khazars, their common language, their common culture, their common religion, and their common racial characteristics classify them all beyond any question of doubt with the Khazars who invaded eastern Europe in the first century B.C. - and were converted to Talmudism in the 7th century.

The so-called or self-styled Jews throughout the world today of eastern origin make up at least 90% of the world's total present population of so-called or self-styled Jews.

The conversion of King Bulan and the Khazar nation in the 7th century accomplished for Talmudism (or for Judaism as Talmudism is called today), was the conversion of Constantine in the western European nations accomplished for Christianity.

Christianity was a small, comparatively unimportant religious belief practiced principally in the eastern Mediterranean area until the conversion to the Christian faith of the large populations of the western European pagan nations after the conversion of Constantine.

Talmudism (or for Judaism as Talmudism is called today) was given its greatest stimulus in all its history with the conversion of the large pagan Khazar population in the 7th century. Without the conversion of the Khazar population it is doubtful that Talmudism (or for Judaism as Talmudism is called today) could have survived.

Talmudism - the civil and religious code of the Pharisees most likely would have passed out of existence like the many other creeds and cults practiced by the peoples in that area before, during and after Phariseism assumed its prominent position among these creeds and cults in the time of Jesus.

Talmudism, as Phariseism was called later, would have disappeared with all its contemporary creeds and cults but for the conversion of the Khazars to Talmudism in the 7th century. At that time Talmudism was well on its way to complete oblivion.

In the year 986 A.D., the ruler of Russia, Vladimir III, became a convert to the Christian faith in order to marry a Catholic Slavonic princess of a neighbouring sovereign state. The marriage was otherwise impossible. Vladimir III thereupon also made his newly acquired Christian faith the state religion of Russia replacing the pagan worship formerly practiced in Russia since it was founded in 820 A.D.

Vladimir III and his successors as the rulers of Russia attempted in vain to convert its so-called or self-styled Jews, now Russian subjects, to Russia's Christian state religion and to adopt the customs and culture of the numerically predominant Russian Christian population... - the so-called or self-styled Jews in Russia refused and resisted this plan vigorously. They refused to adopt the Russian alphabet in place of the Hebrew characters used in writing their Yiddish language. They resisted the substitution of the Russian language for their Yiddish mother-tongue. They opposed every attempt to bring about the assimilation of the former sovereign Khazar nation into the Russian nation. They resisted with every means at their disposal.

The many forms of tension which resulted produced situations described by historians as massacres, pogroms, persecutions, discrimination, et cetera.

In Russia at that period of history it was the custom as in other Christian countries in Europe at that time to take an oath, vow or pledge of loyalty to the ruler, the nobles, the feudal land-holders and others in the name of Jesus Christ. It was after the conquest of the Khazars by the Russians that the wording of the Kol Nidre (or All Vows Prayer) was altered. The new altered version of the Kol Nidre (or All Vows Prayer) as referred to in the Talmud as the law of revocation in advance.

The Kol Nidre (or All Vows Prayer)⁷ was regarded as a law. The effect of this law of revocation in advance obtained for all who recited it each year on the Day of Atonement Divine dispensation for all obligations acquired under oath, vows or pledges to be made or taken in the coming year.

The recital to the Kol Nidre (or All Vows Prayer) on the eve of the Day of Atonement released those so-called and self-styled Jews from any obligation under oath, vows or pledges entered into during the next twelve months! The oath, vows and pledges made or taken by so-called and self-styled Jews were made or taken with tongue-in-cheek for twelve months.

The altered version of the Kol Nidre (or All Vows Prayer) created serious difficulties for the so-called and self-styled Jews when its wording became public property. It apparently did not remain a secret very long, although the Talmud states the law of revocation in advance was not made public.

The altered version of the Kol Nidre (or All Vows Prayer) soon became known as the Jew's Vow and cast serious doubt upon oaths, vows or pledges given to Christians by so-called and self-styled Jews.

Christians soon believed that oaths, vows or pledges were quite worthless when given by so-called or self-styled Jews. This was the basis for discrimination by government, nobles, feudal land-holders and others who required oaths of allegiance and loyalty from those who entered their service.

An intelligent attempt was made to correct this situation by a group of German rabbis in 1844. In that year they called for an international conference of rabbis in Brunswick, Germany. They attempted to have the Kol Nidre (or All Vows Prayer) completely eliminated from the Day of Atonement ceremonies - and entirely abolished from any religious service of their faith.

They felt that this secular pro-opt to the Day of Atonement ceremonies was void of any spiritual implication and did not belong in any synagogue ritual. However, the preponderant majority of the rabbis attending that conference in Brunswick came from eastern Europe; they represented congregations of Yiddish-speaking so-called and self-styled Jews of converted Khazar origin in eastern Europe. They insisted that the altered version of the Kol Nidre (or All Vows Prayer) be retained exactly as it was then recited on the Day of Atonement. They demanded that it be allowed to remain as it had been recited in eastern Europe since the change by [unintelligible] Samuel six centuries earlier. It is today recited in exactly that form throughout the world by so-called or self-styled Jews.

Will the 150 million Christians in the United States react any differently when they become more aware of its insidious implications? How genuine can the implications, inferences, and innuendoes of the so-called brotherhood and interfaith movements be under these circumstances?

These so-called movements are sweeping the nation like prairie fires... - if the Talmud is the axis of the political, economic, cultural and social attitudes and activities of so-called or self-styled Jews participating in these two so-called movements... how genuine are their oaths, vows or pledges taken or given in connection with these two so-called movements by so-called or self-styled Jews??

It would be a superlative gesture of brotherhood or of interfaith if the national conference of Christian and Jews succeeded in expunging from the Talmud all anti-Christ, anti-Christian and anti-Christianity passages.

At a cost of many millions of dollars the national conference of Christians and Jews succeeded in expunging from the New Testament passages which so-called or self-styled Jews regarded as offensive to their faith. A great portion of the cost was supplied by so-called or self-styled Jews.

Christians might now supply funds to expunge from the Talmud passages offensive to the Christian faith. Otherwise the so-called brotherhood a nd interfaith movements are merely mockeries...!!!

The national conference of Christians and Jews might look into the millions of dollars being invested today by so-called or self-styled Jews to ensure that the Talmud shall remain the axis of political, economic, cultural and social attitudes and activities of by so-called or self-styled Jews today (and future generations). Violating the basic principal of brotherhood and interfaith so-called or self-styled Jews are spending millions of dollars each year to establish and equip quarters where the teachings of the Talmud can be indoctrinated into the minds of children from the time they are able to read and write.

This concludes th Benjamin Freeman letter... I hope you found it as interesting as I did. I encourage everyone to do their own research - and to draw their own informed conclusions!

The Holocaust Lie of Six Million Jews

Anyone who dares oppose the deliberate lie that six million Jews - the Eternal Victims of the Holocaust - were supposedly gassed in Nazi concentration camps is immediately branded and anathematized as the ultimate evil - Anti-Semitic. The Holocaust Lie has been turned into a civil religion... a spiritual and financial wellspring of Jewish power placing billions-upon-billions of reparations money into the hands of greedy Zionist supremacists.

In 1900, Rabbi Weis claimed that there were six million Jews bleeding and suffering for Zion; in the 10th Edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica (1902), under the entry for Anti-Semitism, it claims that over six million Jews were suffering and being degraded in Russia and Rumania; it has been claimed that from 1890 to 1902 six million Jews have been exiled from Russia - and by 1910 it had been declared over-and-over again that Russia intended systematically exterminate its six million Jews...; twenty-two years before Hitler came to power and six years before World War I - the Zionist Congress of 1911 claimed that European leaders were planning to exterminate six million Jews; between 1914 and 1918, many American newspapers appealed for help for the plight of more than six million Jews "starving" in the European war-zone... but said nothing of the native-born European peoples, and, by 1921, it was claimed that six million Jews in Russia faced extermination; in 1931, once again, six million Jews were facing starvation... and, by 1932, six million Jews had perished in the Soviet famine; by 1936, six million Jews were being threatened with concentration camps (or gulags) in Russia.

From time immemorial, the Jews have known better than any other how falsehood and calumny can be exploited. Is not their very existence founded on one great lie... that they are a religious community, whereas in reality they are a race? Schopenhauer called the Jews "the Great Master of Lies." Those who do not realize the truth of that statement, or do not wish to believe it, will never be able to lend a helping hand in helping Truth to prevail.

The eternal struggle between the people and the hatred amongst them is being nurtured by a small, rootless, international clique that is turning the people against each other... that does not want them to have peace... an international element at home both nowhere and everywhere... who do not have a soil where they have grown up... conducting their usurious business everywhere... but the people are bounded to their native soil... bounded to the possibilities that that state offers.

The Myth of the Holocaust

Sylvia Stolz is the former defense attorney for "holocaust revisionist" Ernest Zündel. She was disbarred and taken out of a Munich courtroom and jailed for 2 1/2 years because of an arbitrary "special statute" within the law unconstitutionally prohibiting "Free Speech" when dealing with this "unique crime"... as demonstrating evidence to the contrary of popular opinion is both superfluous and criminal. Thus, the two pillars of persecution of "holocaust revisionism" are: 1) justification of popular opinion, and 2) the "unique crime" of having a different opinion than the uniformed brainwashed hoi polloi.

This quote by Johann Gottfried von Herder is the very essence of being human: "To think what is true, to sense what is beautiful and to want what is good, hereby the spirit finds the purpose of a life in reason." This implies the ability to identify and label lies, the ability to identify and label the inhumane, the ability to identify and label injustice. It also implies character traits which are of particular importance in our age: The knowledge of our immortality and steadfastness and incorruptibility. With such character we might be able to shape a world in which we are allowed to speak the truth without punishment.

Regardless of your world-view, your religion or philosophical orientation with regard to the criminalization of "holocaust denial."

Doctors are banned from practicing medicine because of their anti-immunization views, and journalists are punished for publishing opinions different than what the agents of Zio-media propaganda want them telling us... but they are not jailed. However, banned evidence and banned legal defense in the case of "holocaust denial" violates Freedom of Speech.

According to French historian Jacques Beynac, who supports the official account of the holocaust, quoted in Le Nouveau Quotidien de Lausanne, a Swiss newspaper in 1996: "When it comes to the existence of Nazi "gas chambers," all one can do is, to point out the absence of documents, of physical traces and similar types of material evidence."

Another historian, Ernst Nolte wrote in his book The Casual Nexus: "The witness testimonies are for the most part based on hearsay and assumptions. The few eye-witness testimonies we have are in partial contradiction with one another, and raises questions regarding overall credibility."

"It is completely irrelevant whether the holocaust really did or did not happen. It is illegal to deny it in Germany, and that is all that counts in court."

Judge Mienerzhagen, during the trial of Ernest Zündel (not stated in the transcripts) but in the Berliner Tageszeitung, 9 February 2007

International Red Cross records refute the "official" death toll. Sealed and guarded since the end of WWII at Arolsen, Germany, the Official IRC records reveal that the actual Concentration Camp total death toll was 271,301 - and not six million. Yet, though the number of dead at Auschwitz was revised in 1989 from 4.1 million to 1.5 million... the "official" account of the cabalistic fable of six million dead and dying Jews remained unchanged.

American gas chamber expert Dr. Fred A. Leuchter visited all sites and testified that the supposed gas chambers were incapable of supporting the use of hydrogen cyanide gas for mass executions or otherwise. No "Prussian blue" staining was found on walls in any of the supposed death chambers. In fact, the only forensic evidence of gassing that was found was related to delousing, where Zyklon B was used on clothing and bedding, to stop the spread of typhus.

The truth does not fear investigation... still, questioning the Holocaust will land you in jail in many countries (which support the usurious Khazarian-mafia banksters which promote the lie deluding the masses of sheeple). Why can't we ask questions? Why is Holocaust dogma defended with such vitriole? Because, as Vladimir Lenin said: "A lie told often enough becomes the truth." And, as the war criminal and Zionist stooge Winston Churchill said: "History is written by the victors."

"To find out who rules over you, simply find out who you are not allowed to criticize."

Israeli Prime Ministers who were Terrorists and War Criminals

Israeli Prime Ministers who were Terrorists and War Criminals - proponents of racism, apartheid, ethnic cleansing and genocide:

1 - David Ben-Gurion: he commanded the ethnic cleansing of approximately 750,000 Arabs during the destruction of hundreds of Palestinian villages in 1948. Most of the victims were noncombatant dirt-poor farmers and their families who lived in mud huts, had no weapons, and thus couldn't resist even if they had wanted to.

2 - Levi Eshkol: he presided over the ethnic cleansing of 250,000 Palestinian refugees, most of them noncombatant farmers and their families.

3 - Menachem Begin: he was the preeminent terrorist in the Middle East... until Ben-Gurion and Eshkol surpassed him. He killed Brits, Arabs and Jews with reckless abandon, including civilians, and was also involved in the Deir Yassin massacre and other acts of terrorism such as the bombing of the King David Hotel.

4 - Ariel Sharon: a murderous war-hawk, he was responsible for massacres at Qibya, Sabra and Shatila.

5 - Benjamin Netanyahu: he was responsible for the deaths and mutilations of thousands of children during Operations Cast Lead, Pillars of Defense and Protective Edge. He called for "mass expulsions among the Arabs of the occupied territories" and presided over multiple Gazan massacres.

6 - Yitzak Shamir: he had Britain's Lord Moyne and Sweden's Count Folke Bernadotte assassinated for seeking to have Arabs treated as equals of Jews, and was also involved in the Deir Yassin massacre and other acts of terrorism. He was a leader of a Jewish terrorist group known as the Stern Gang, which carried out a string of assassinations.

7 - Ehud Barak: a cross-dressing assassin, he participated in death squads that killed women, policemen and a Christian poet known as "The Conscience."

8 - Golda Meir: she threatened to destroy the world with nukes during a BBC interview and more than once insisted that Palestinians "did not exist" as a people - and so could not return and reclaim the land stolen from the Palestinians. She also ordered Operation Wrath of God, which resulted in the civilian deaths attributed to Ehud Barak's death squad and other botched assassinations, such as the one in Lillehammer, Norway, that resulted in the death of an innocent writer.

9 - Shimon Peres: he aggressively pursued nuclear weapons and succeeded in delivering them, creating the nuclear weapon program that allowed other Israeli leaders to threaten the world with nuclear blackmail (the "Sampson Option").

10 - Yitzak Rabin: he was a war-monger who signed an order for the children of Lydda to be ethnically cleansed "quickly, without attention to age."

11 - Yigal Allon: he served in the Haganah's underground Special Night Squads which specialized in ambushes, and tortured and killed "without compunction."

12 - Ehud Olmert: he presided over the 2006 invasion of Lebanon, which killed 1300 people and displaced more than a million others. He included Israel as a nuclear superpower along with the US and Russia.

13 - Moshe Sharett: he was a staunch proponent of compulsory population transfer (ethnic cleansing).

Note: 10% of the Arabs killed by the Israeli's in 1948 were Christian and 10% of the Arab property confiscated by Israel belonged to Christians. Israel's massacres forced 100,000 Palestinian Christians to become refugees.
